

HEALTH INFORMATICS FELLOWSHIP

ACADEMIC YEAR 2005-2006

Are you interested in health and biomedical sciences, technology, and information management?

Apply for one of 10 fellowships for a master's degree at the University of North Texas!

Be part of a growing and important field!

Recruiting: Forward-thinking health and biomedical sciences majors from all accredited colleges. Special consideration given to students who completed the Biomedical Sciences Information Management course at UNT and Texas A&M.

For: Fellowship that includes tuition, fees, and stipends for a master's degree. Specialization in Health Informatics at the UNT-School of Library and Information Sciences (SLIS), an innovative curriculum linking classroom knowledge with professional practice.

---

Details:

Contacts: Dr. Ana Cleveland - ana@lis.admin.unt.edu

Dr. Gale Hannigan - g-hannigan@tamu.edu

Visit: http://courses.unt.edu/acleveland/Hi\_Program/index.html

IMLS is a federal grantmaking agency located in Washington, D.C. that fosters leadership, innovation and a lifetime of learning by supporting museums and libraries. This year, IMLS received 76 applications and awarded nearly $10 million to support 27 inaugural projects for its Recruiting and Educating Librarians for the 21st Century initiative.